

The Common Good: Chinese and American Perspectives

Editors: David Solomon and Ping-cheung Lo

Part I: Introduction

Chapter 1

The Common Good

P. C. Lo and David
Solomon

Part II: The Philosophical Background for the Common Good

Chapter 2

Beyond the Common Good: The Priority of Persons

H. Tristram
Engelhardt Jr.

Chapter 3

Attacks on the Family East and West: Evidence for the Erosion of a Common Good

Stephen A. Erickson

Chapter 4

Why Modern Ethics Rejects the Common Good:
Some Suggestions

David Solomon

Part III: Chinese Philosophical Reflections on the Common Good

Chapter 5

The Concept of "Datong" in Chinese Philosophy as an Expression of the Idea of the Common Good

Albert H. Y. Chen

Chapter 6

The Common Good in Moism: A Reconstruction of Mozi's Ethics of "Inclusive Care" and "Reciprocal Well-Being"

Ellen Zhang

Chapter 7

The Common Good and Filial Piety: A Confucian
Perspective

Jue Wang

Chapter 8	Common Good and the Ethics of Global Poverty: A Confucian Perspective	Jonathan Chan
Chapter 9	Between the Family and the State: The Common Good and the Confucian Habits of the Heart	P. C. Lo
Chapter 10	A Confucian Notion of the Common Good for Contemporary China	Ruiping Fan
Part IV: The Common Good and Aristotelian/Thomistic Philosophy
Chapter 11	The Common Good and the Virtuous Political Leader	Karen C. Chan
Chapter 12	Why Justice Is Not Enough: Mercy, Love-Caritas, and the Common Good	Mary M. Keys
Chapter 13	Who Is Responsible for the Common Good? Catholic Social Teaching and the Praxis of Subsidiarity	Dennis P. McCann